

CONCERNING FACTS

There are 15 942 white rhinos and 6 195 black rhinos remaining in Africa. Did you know - roughly every 20 hours 1 rhino is killed for its horn in South Africa!

The African wild dog population has declined to an estimated 6 600 in Africa, due to human involvement in their movements and habitats.

Pangolin are the most trafficked mammal in the world. No one knows how many are left, we just know they are being decimated.

There are 20 000 lions left in the world and 2 300 left in South Africa!

Tens of thousands of elephants are lost to poaching every year and only 228 000 elephants remain in Southern Africa.

A shocking 12 400 cheetahs remain, within 25 African countries.

We are facing the extinction of these beautiful mammals and many other species in the next decade.

OUR BIG GOALS

■ Tracking and Protection of Endangered Mammals:

This includes sustaining our current rhino DNA collection, rhino dehorning, African wild dog tracking, and pangolin tracking and protection programmes.

■ Exploring New Programmes:

We are considering expanding our conservation efforts to include other species such as cheetahs, lions, and elephants.

■ Fundraising and Sustainability:

We aim to increase fundraising efforts to support and expand our programmes through events like the Art For Conservation Auction, The Boucher Legacy Open Golf at Leopard Creek, and Friends of The Kruger National Park & SANParks.

■ Collaboration:

We remain dedicated to working closely with our valued key partners, core sponsors, and agency partners, collectively referred to as "Friends Of The Boucher Legacy."

■ Transparency:

Upholding rigorous governance standards to ensure proper allocation and thorough auditing of funds.

THE FUTURE

OUR ORIGINS

Pioneered by former South African cricketer Mark Boucher, The Boucher Legacy emerged in 2012. Mark's transition from international cricket marked the beginning of a profound journey dedicated to wildlife conservation.

In collaboration with former SAB Marketing Leader, Alastair Hewitt, they co-founded The Boucher Legacy. Mark's enduring passion and unwavering commitment, reflected in his "never give up" philosophy from his cricketing days, has been instrumental in shaping The Boucher Legacy's vital role in spotlighting the challenges faced by endangered mammals in Southern Africa.

OUR FOCUS

Our primary focus has always been safeguarding three endangered mammal groups: the rhino, pangolin, and African wild dog. Within these groups, we focus on vital initiatives.

We are committed to the safe relocation of African wild dogs, as well as collaring, snare removals, distemper, and rabies check-ups. We're proud to have collared over 40 packs in the greater Kruger National Park, enabling us to monitor their movements, rescue them when they venture beyond park boundaries, and remove horrific snares.

Our rhino tracking and protection programme is equally as vital. We're actively expanding a comprehensive DNA database, collaborating with experts on rhino collaring, tracking, dehorning, and extending support to rhino orphans who've lost their mothers.

The pangolin, the world's most trafficked mammal, has found an ally in us. Our pioneering Pangolin Project encompasses pangolin rehabilitation, release back into their natural habitat, and advanced telemetry tracking. We've successfully rehabilitated numerous pangolins and continue to track them via telemetry units after their release into the wild.

YOUR SUPPORT, OUR LIFELINE

None of our achievements would be possible without your unwavering support. Your donations make a profound impact on conservation, altering the course of countless animal lives.

Join us in our urgent mission to safeguard and preserve endangered mammals.

Donate today, and together, we can make a lasting difference.
